A Gascon Year: Janvier is the first in a series of twelve seasonal cookbooks featuring food and stories as warm and comforting as a hot supper cooked in an old French Farmhouse. Kate Hill, writer, cook and teacher, entices the reader into her life in Southwest France as she shares the regional and delicious recipes of Gascony. Along with trucs and tips, this beautiful book offers generous instruction on how to shop a farmers market for winter food, prepare a Poule-au-Pot, what to do with winter truffles, or how to keep a pastry tart from getting soggy. Each of these monthly cahiers de cuisine or kitchen notebooks is built on seasonal inspiration and instruction with personal essays, recipes, and photographs that are timeless. Easy to follow recipes for aperitifs and soups, main courses, and desserts fill these delectable volumes. A Gascon Year: Janvier introduces the reader to Kate Hill Cooks, the online teaching courses at Kitchen-at-Camont.com and all the good food she creates within its 18th century stone walls for her students around the globe. Included in January's volume are a baker's dozen of authentic recipes for: crêpes; souffléed omelets; clafoutis; chicken; truffled rabbit pie; stuffed cabbage or poule verte; tomato caper sauce; leek soup; garbure; roquefort walnut and pear tart; fabulous Gascon apple croustade; and two butter pastry crusts, pâte brisée and rustic puff pastry.
