This is a rather fun movie about untapped Americans. It is about living the American dream but using someone else's prize possession – the cow. Director Kelly Reichardt has successfully captured the true essence of genuine hustling by two travelers on the run from vengeful hunters in the early 19th century.

Do you know cows were considered wild animals until about 10,000 years ago? Well, this is not a history class, but a little knowledge never hurts.
