Make your own Seasoning Mixes from the spices you already own.

Also discover many self reliance tips.

As we know America was discovered while Christopher Columbus was seeking a faster trade route to the East Indies. He wanted to bring back spices quickly and cheaply. In his time spices were a very prized item. Today, compared to Columbus time spices are not near so valuable unless you don't have them. Then how much would you pay if you did not have access to Spaghetti or Taco season packet?

With the economic downturn of the US one item that has really increased in price are spices. I have watched spice packets double in price. People are willing to pay for a little something extra when it comes to good tasting food and your grocer knows this. For this reason spices will continue to climb as economic times waver.

Bulk Seasonings are much cheaper. If kept in a good mason jar or other suitable condition away from heat and light they will last for years. So what are you waiting for? Start saving today! Whip up your favorite seasoning mix from the spices I'm sure you already own.

I guarantee the recipes in this book will open a new world of creation to you. It will pay you back again and again in lost time money and gas. No more running to the store because you realize in the middle of cooking, you don't have that season packet you always use. From now on you can pass up the season packets with a smile because you know how to make your own.
